HARRY L. BACKUS, Editor and Proprietor. OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY TERMS: $1.25 Per Year.

VOL. XXXIX. SMETHPORT, PA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 16, 1902. NO. 3

General Grant's Order.

Col, George Inman, a civil engineer, who was an engineer in the Union army with Grant in front of Petersburg in 1864-'5, as colonel of engineers, now engaged on some public work near Richmond, told this story of U. S. Grant to a group of Confederate veterans, ex-officers, there recently.

In the winter of 1864 a Capt. Hamilton of the Confederate army was captured within the Federal lines, and there were found on his person papers which clearly indicated that he had penetrated the lines for the purpose of gaining information for General Lee. He was courtmartialed and was at once condemned to be hanged at sunrise the next day. Col. Hamilton, who was in command of a cavalry regiment under Gen. Grant, was charged with the duty of furnishing the detail which was to execute the sentence of the court.

The night of the day on which the court pronounced the sentence on Capt. Hamilton, Col. Inman went to Gen. Grant's tent to see him on a matter connected with the operations against the Confederates. He had been in the tent for some time when an orderly announced "Col. Hamilton." A soldierly appearing officer entered and saluted. Before General Grant had time to speak, the colonel said in hard tones: "General, I cannot obey the order to execute that spy to-morrow morning."

Gen. Grant started as if shot.

"Why not?" he said in sharp tones.

The colonel was silent. He stood with bared head, dropped on his bosom. Gen. Grant again asked him why he refused to obey his order, and this time there was a sharpness in his tones which was not there before. Col. Hamilton raised his head and looked the commander-in-chief full in the face.

"General, that man is my only son."

Gen. Grant looked his officer in the face for a moment, then he turned his back. The colonel remained standing and silent, uncovered and his head bowed. Then Gen. Grant wheeled around and said in a harsh voice:

"Col. Hamilton, you will obey your orders."

The colonel saluted and left the tent.

Col. Inman remembered that the next morning the detail charged with the duty of hanging the spy went to the tent, and when the sentry entered it was found that there was nobody inside.

About ten years afterward Col. Inman was in San Francisco on business connected with his profession. While there he chanced to meet a Mr. Hamilton with whom he became well acquainted. Hamilton one day confided that he was in the Confederate army, and the relation of war experiences began. It came out that the Mr. Hamilton was the Capt. Hamilton whom Col. Hamilton was ordered to hang. There were questions from Col. Inman, of course, and the story of the escape of the young soldier was brought out.

On the night before the day on which he was to be executed, he said after midnight, he was lying on the blanket in his tent half asleep, for the circumstances did not warrant heavy sleep. He was aroused by the entrance of some one in the tent. A candle was burning dimly, and he saw before him a heavily built man with short, stubby whiskers, wearing a blue uniform without any insignia of rank on his shoulders, a black slouch hat pulled down over his eyes. He recognized General Grant.

The story does not go in details as to the conversation which ensued. The result was that the condemned spy, after there had been exacted a promise that he would never again assume the part which had so nearly cost him his life, was given the countersign which would enable him to pass the sentries. Then the man in the slouch hat went away.

And the man who was to have been hanged at sunrise did the same thing, and before the sun was up was within the Confederate lines.

"Muchly" Married Woman.

A year or two ago a Smethport couple after much quarreling and trouble, which at one time became so serious that the man was arrested for making violent threats, separated and have since been living apart. The women left this place several months ago and took up her abode at Port Allegany. About a week ago the report reached the man that she had "married" again and he was naturally somewhat surprised, as apparently she had not considered a decree of divorce at all necessary. It is the woman's fourth voyage upon matrimonial seas and may result disastrously for her as her Smethport husband is making a thorough investigation of the matter and further developments may not be altogether pleasant for her. Counting number four, the woman has three live "husbands" scattered around the country.

Attention Parents.

Notice is hereby given, that on and after Feb. 1st, 1902, any and all children creating disturbances in the postoffice will be dealt with according to law.

From Our Esteemed Contemporaries.

When we picked up the McKEAN COUNTY MINER from our exchange table last week, we wondered what stranger had entered our sanctum, so changed was the paper's appearance that we did not recognize it. Editor Backus has always given his readers a good paper and with the latest improvement—eight pages; with a "clean" front page—he has a paper which is a great credit to himself and the town in which it is published. The Enterprise is pleased to note the unmistakable evidence that Harry is meeting with success. "May his fortunes increase."—Potter Enterprise.

The McKEAN COUNTY MINER begins its 39th volume with a radical reform in its shape, being changed from the old fashioned folio to the much more convenient form now used by the great majority of weeklies round about. We hail the MINER quarto with delight, as it saves much time unfolding the paper, which in the old form reminded us of the housewife's carefully ironed pillow slips.—Potter Journal.

The McKEAN MINER came to our desk last week changed from the old nine column folio blanket sheet to the more modern six column quarto size. The change was made as the MINER enters upon its thirty-ninth year. We congratulate Brother Backus on the many improvements in the MINER since it came under his control.—Potter Democrat.

Last week the Smethport MINER celebrated a birthday and came to hand in a changed and much improved form. It has discarded the folio, large page and now uses eight pages same as the News. We congratulate the MINER on the improved appearance and convenience of that worthy sheet.—Mt. Jewett News.

The MINER came out in new form last week, a six column quarto, in size and form exactly like the Eagle. In beginning the 39th year of its existence, Mr. Backus makes a change which cannot but be appreciated by its readers and advertisers.—Eldred Eagle.

The McKEAN MINER came to us last week in its new and attractive form—an eight page six column quarto. That Bro. Backus is prospering is evidenced by the neat and newsy paper he puts out.—Port Allegany Press.

The Smethport MINER has changed its form, and otherwise greatly improved its appearance. We are pleased to note this evidence of deserved prosperity in our enterprising neighbor.—Mt. Jewett Herald.

Last week the McKEAN MINER entered upon its 39th volume and to make up of the paper was changed from a four to an eight page paper. A fine improvement.—Emporium Independent.

The McKEAN MINER has entered upon its thirty-ninth year. It is a newsy paper and has been changed to a six column eight page paper.—Ulysses Sentinel.

The McKEAN MINER has been enlarged to an eight page, six column paper, and is greatly improved in appearance generally.—Wellsboro Gazette.

McKEAN MINER has adopted the six column quarto style, a much more attractive and convenient style for a newspaper.—Kane Leader.

In the Passenger Coach Behind.

"It is a cold day when a newspaper editor gets left," is an expression which was used often in the campaign last fall, "and it is a colder day when an officeholder gets left," is another favorite expression, but if you remember, last Saturday was one of those days.

On the aforesaid day a gentleman from the eastern part of the county, holding both exalted positions, decided to spend Sunday at his own fireside, and, with this end in view, he journeyed to the Shawmut depot, took a seat in a coach on the side track with the intention of spending a few spare moments in a peaceful reverie of his many victories on the political and journalistic field of honor. He is a deep thinker and, when alone with his thoughts, the din of train whistles and bells disturb him not. The train had come and gone before the journalist-politician returned to this mundane sphere.

Our brother from the East is one who will allow no small misfortune to thwart him so he procured a rig and after a five-hour battle with the elements and snow drifts in which he was immersed several times, he triumphed. Sunday he pleasantly spent with his family and Monday he returned to the county seat to assume his duties, little the worse for the experience, but he says that is the last time he will enter the passenger coach behind.

A Painful Accident.

Harvey Simpler of East King street met with quite a serious accident Monday. Mr. Simpler is boss cutter at the Camp factory and while engaged at his work a piece of glass flew striking him in the eye inflicting a dangerous wound. The location of the cut was a serious menace to his eyesight and Mr. Simpler went to Bradford Monday night to consult a specialist. He is now at home and just what the result of the injury will be is not at present apparent.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

William A Young, Mrs. Henry Wright and Herbert Spinney Passed Into the Great Beyond.

W. A. YOUNG.

William A. Young died at his home in this borough Monday evening, January 13, 1902, aged 45 years, 6 months and 15 days, after a lingering illness of consumption.

Mr. Young was born in Keating township June 28, 1856, and always resided there until he moved into this borough about eight years ago. He was a farmer and lumberman by occupation and during his residence here held several township offices. He served one term as auditor of this county and one term as county commissioner, and since he lived in the borough held the office of assessor. The deceased had many friends in the county who will regret his demise.

On October 30, 1878, he was united in marriage to Miss Jane Day of Keating township and the fruits of this union were seven children, four girls, Ella, Edith, Lena and Marion, and three boys, Benjamin, Gard and Herman, who with their mother, two brothers of the deceased, D. C. Young of this borough and Dr. G. B. Young of Geneva, N. Y., and their aged mother, Mrs. Lanrinda H. Young of Farmers Valley, deeply mourn the loss of a kind and devoted father, husband, brother and son.

The funeral was held at the house at 10:30 this morning, Rev. J. Heber McCandless officiating, and the remains will be laid at rest in the Smith cemetery near Farmers Valley this afternoon.

MRS. HENRY WRIGHT.

Mary, wife of Henry Wright, died at her home on Marvin creek at 6:30 Tuesday evening, aged 47 years, 7 months and 19 days, after a lingering illness from cancer of the stomach.

Mary Genther was born in Schuylkill county, Pa. When a mere child she came to this county with her parents and settled on a farm on Marvin creek. In 1874 she was united in marriage to Henry Wright and to this union there were born six children, four daughters, Mrs. Myron Terwilliger, Misses Alice, Ethel and Edith, and two sons, William and W. T., who with their father and her half brother, Z. T. Carl, mourn her demise.

Mrs. Wright was a kind and indulgent wife and mother, and a woman who was beloved by a large circle of friends and neighbors. She was ever ready to assist a friend in need and her death will be sincerely mourned by all who knew her.

A short prayer will be held at the house at 1 p. m. Friday and the funeral services will be held at the M. E. church at 2 p. m., Rev. Gaylard H. Patterson officiating. The remains will be laid at rest in Rose Hill cemetery.

HERBERT SPINNEY.

Herbert Spinney died at the home of his mother in East Smethport Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock, aged 28 years, 2 months and 29 days. He had long been a sufferer from consumption and death came as a blessed relief.

Deceased was born in Danforth, Me., and came to this place with his parents six years ago. Besides a devoted mother he leaves three brothers, Robert, Frederick and Howard, and three sisters, Mrs. Manzer Mowry, Mrs. John Sherwood and Mrs. Elmer Raymond.

The funeral will be held in Grimes church at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. Burial in Grimes cemetery.

A Superb Griddle.

We, the undersigned ladies and citizens of Smethport, respectfully call your attention to the merits of the celebrated Canton Pancake Griddle, sold by C. J. Sackett, agent, Smethport, Pa. We are using it and find it superior to any griddle we ever used for making dainty breakfast cakes and assure you we never ate finer flavored or more delicious cakes. They are baked in elevated cups with hot air. This helps make them light, soft and spongy, with no hard edges. They are of uniform size and thickness from edge to center when baked on a stove with a level top. The finest buckwheat, corn and wheat cakes can be baked upon it, and all turned at once, thus saving time and labor. Aside from baking cakes, it is superior to the frying pan for frying eggs, egg or corn fritters, etc., as they can be fried in the most dainty and delicate manner. We consider this utensil a valuable aid to us in our kitchen and indispensable the year round for preparing various appetizing dishes. The public is cordially invited to sample those elegant cakes at the Dairy Kitchen Café. As it does as represented we cheerfully recommend its use to all, feeling confident that those who get one will be well pleased with their investment. Three choice recipes for fine cakes and full instructions for using free with each griddle.

A. B. Martin a Suicide.

A. B. Martin, a well known resident of Custer City, committed suicide at his home in that place shortly after 12 o'clock Tuesday morning by shooting himself in the right temple with a revolver, says the Era. During the past month he had been seriously ill with heart trouble and was under the care of Dr. Benninghoff of this city. His condition failed to improve and it was finally decided to have him removed to the Bradford hospital, which was done on Saturday last. His ailment was of such a nature that medical treatment was of but little aid to him and it was quickly discovered that he would improve as readily at his home as at the hospital. In consequence he was taken to his residence, at Custer City, last evening, accompanied by Miss McCain, as nurse. During the night he appeared to be in such a weakened condition that his wife called in Dr. Chesney to attend him. The doctor administered to the patient, and left him in care of the nurse.

About midnight Miss McCain had occasion to leave the bedroom. While she was absent from the apartment a revolver shot was heard, and the nurse, hurrying back to the room, found the prostrate body of Mr. Martin lying on the floor, with a gaping bullet wound in the right temple.

During the absence of Miss McCain the patient had arisen from his bed, and taking the revolver from its place of concealment had committed the deed. Death was almost instantaneous.

Dr. Chesney was again summoned to the residence, but his services were not required, as the bullet had performed its mission perfectly.

No cause is assigned for the act other than despondency owing to ill health and the conviction that he could not be cured.

Mr. Martin was aged 58 years and had resided in the vicinity of Bradford during the past 25 years. He was prominently identified with the oil industry and at the time of his death was the owner of 32 producing wells. He was extensively acquainted throughout McKean county and was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends. Mr. Martin is survived by his widow, who has the sincere sympathy of all in her affliction.

A Woman Killed.

A dispatch from Sabinanoca dated Jan. 9, says: Mrs. Russell E. Pickett, a well known lady of this place, was the victim to day of a terrible accident. She was crossing the tracks in the Erie yards when she was run down by a switch engine. The woman had been unable to see the engine approaching owing to cars that stood between her and the locomotive. She stepped upon the track just in front of the engine, not having heard the cries of persons in the vicinity who tried to warn her. The woman was rolled under the engine for some distance and was terribly crushed and bruised. The wheels passed over one of her feet, mangling it horribly. The engine was soon stopped when Mrs. Pickett, in an unconscious condition, was taken to the hospital. There she died at seven o'clock in the evening, having lived three and a half hours after the accident. Deceased was aged 56 years and is survived by her husband, a brother and sister. The latter is Mrs. Fred Mattison, and the brother, Albert Slatt, both of Johnsonburg.

A Pleasant Visit.

Twenty-six members of the P. H. C. from Derrick City and vicinity drove to Smethport Tuesday night and were entertained by the circle at this place. Weaver's big sleigh drawn by four horses brought twenty-two of them and their ride was a most enjoyable one. The brothers and sisters of the local lodge extended them a royal welcome and after the regular business of the meeting had been transacted the fun commenced. A program of musical selections and recitations was rendered, and many of the performers showed great talent as entertainers. Dancing was then indulged in for severals hours and the guests started for home delighted with Smethport hospitality. The visitors have extended a pressing invitation to the Smethport circle to return the call, and they will no doubt grasp the opportunity for another meeting with great pleasure.

It Jarred Them.

Last Saturday evening Prof. Foster of the Smethport high school accompanied by Misses Dunbar and Griffith teachers in the same institution drove to this borough on plensure bent. As they were driving northward on Main street near the First National Bank the horses turned to the right to pass another rig, the cutter struck the crossing with such force that the whiffletrees broke freeing the horses and the force threw the occupants of the cutter into the gutter. Fortunately they were not injured other than a severe shaking up. The horses ran back to the stable and the party was hospitably entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Field until Sunday morning.—Port Allegany Argus.

This Country Owes the Cubans Nothing.

The persistent repetition of the argument that it is the duty of the United States to provide a market for Cuban sugar, because it deprived the Cubans of the access which they formerly enjoyed to the market of Spain, gets to be very tiresome, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. For many years the Cubans had been making futile efforts to cast off what they described as the yoke of Spanish oppression. Finally, this country, through a combination of circumstances, was impelled to go to their help. It made demands in their behalf which led, and which it was well known inevitably would lead, to a war with Spain, and after a brief but costly, conflict the end toward which the Cubans had so long been struggling was attained and the condition of things which they had declared intolerable was abolished. The Spanish Government was forced to relinquish its jurisdiction over the island and the dream of thousands of persons who were known as Cuban patriots was suddenly and unexpectedly fulfilled.

But it seems now from what is being said that the Cubans who wanted to cut loose from Spain didn't know what was for their own good. Instead of being the down-trodden victims of Spanish oppression, who to be happy and prosperous only needed to be set free, they were in reality dependent for their living upon Spanish support, and losing that support their emancipation was rather a calamity than a blessing, unless they are to receive an equivalent assistance from some other direction. For that reason it is said to be the duty of the United States to go to their relief and to save them from the consequences of the mistake they made in supposing that they would be better off if they were encouraged and enabled to set up in business for themselves.

This is about as extraordinary a line of argument as it is possible to imagine. Because the United States did the Cubans what, according to their own statement, was a great service, it has become responsible for their future welfare! That was a consequence which few foresaw when a wave of hysterical sentiment swept this country into war.

Then again it is said that the American market must be opened to Cuban sugar because, by insisting upon the incorporation in the Cuban constitution of the Platt amendment, we deprived the prospective Cuban Government of the right to negotiate treaties with foreign countries. This is a very specious sort of special pleading. The possession by Cuba of the treaty making power would not at all improve the industrial situation. There is no European market for West Indian sugar. That commodity has practically been rendered unmerchantable by the fact that it cannot be sold as cheaply as the product of the beet. It is in this circumstance that the root of the whole trouble is to be found. The Cubans are producing an article with which the markets of the world have been largely overstocked, and the suggestion that the unfortunate condition in which they find themselves is one for which the United States is in the least degree responsible is an insult to the public intelligence.

Any concessions that may be made for the purpose of relieving Cuban distress will be in the nature of a charity. They will be wholly of grace and not at all of right, and the chances are that they will elicit about as much gratitude as the other services which we have rendered, and that is none at all.

Shame a Test of Character.

The Philadelphia Ledger declares that shame is a test of character. The feeling of shame is one which everybody understands, because it is one which everyone has experienced. Probably there is no one so steeped in degradation that he has wholly lost the sense of shame; certainly there is no one so near perfection as to have no cause for it. No one is too high or too low to be affected by it, and whatever be its cause the emotion itself is invariably a painful one. In different degrees and for different reasons it afflicts the heart of the schoolboy at his play and the Judge upon the bench; it brings a blush to the cheek of the maiden in her closet, and dims the pride of the soldier on the battlefield. While it seems a specially fitting emotion for the coward or the criminal, it sometimes strikes a far deeper pang on the hero or the saint. It is not the one who most deserves its infliction who most surely suffers from it; a sensitive nature will often be keenly alive to its sting, when an obtuse one will feel not the slightest prick.

The Frogs Visit Kane.

The Kane Republican of Monday has the following to say about the visit of the Frogs to the Mountain city:

According to a previous announcement a number of the members of the Ancient and Independent Order of Frogs, headed by the Chief Croaker of the Universe, Judge Reynolds, arrived in Kane Saturday evening after a never-to-be-forgotten overland trip from Smethport. The trip was made to Mt. Jewett in good time, but from there over the Frogs and Tadpoles had some exciting times, and had it not been for a supply of "liquid nirzone," which one of the members had been thoughtful enough to get, it is hard to tell what disasters might have happened. After "thawing out" upon their arrival, the organization went to the Temple Theatre where they occupied boxes and enjoyed the play. When this was over an adjournment was made to the Arlington Cafe where a sumptuous repast was in waiting, which had been provided by Burgess E. L. Ryan in honor of the distinguished party, Mr. Ryan being a Tadpole. Judge Reynolds in taking his seat of honor at the head of the table, made one of his characteristic speeches and from that time on the fun waxed warm and furious, and it was late, so late that we are afraid should we tell, some might think it was Sunday morning ere the last croak of the Frogs was heard. As an after dinner speaker the Judge has few equals, and had there been an opportunity given for him to have made a public address we are of the opinion that his candidacy for the nomination of county commissioner at the coming Republican primaries would have received a healthy boom. The following gentlemen were present from Smethport: Chief Croaker, I. S. Reynolds; Messrs. R. E. Burdick, R. P. Yeardon, R. C. Gleason, A. Hagberg, Robert Pallatt, Geo. R. Brownell, Guy McCoy and S. F. Redfield.

The return trip was made Sunday afternoon, and as we have received no telephone message to the contrary, we are led to believe that they arrived at their destination in due time. We understand that a special dispensation from Chief Croaker Reynolds has been left with Burgess Ryan and that a lodge of this famous organization will soon be established in Kane.

This May Interest You

During the two years the McKEAN MINER has been under the present management it has prospered, but there have been many repairs and improvements needed to keep this paper at the head of the rank of the weekly newspapers of this county. We have made these improvements—bought new type, a new press and many other smaller articles that were needed. In so doing every dollar of the profits of the paper has been expended to give the readers and advertisers better value for their money. Besides the profits we have laid out over $1,000 in bettering our facilities and now we ask those who received the benefits to show their appreciation of our efforts by assisting us.

A great many subscribers are indebted to this office for the MINER. The amount in each case is small—from 50 cents to $2.50—but in the aggregate it amounts to a great deal. Within the next four weeks bills will be sent to all or nearly all who are in arrears. And we want you to understand that it is not because we are afraid to trust you, but because we need the money that we urge prompt settlement.

As a personal favor to the MINER and its editor do not delay sending in your remittance.

In Regard to Mad Dogs.

It is reported that the dog, supposed to be suffering from rabies, which was killed in this place last week, was owned in Farmers Valley, and that it had bitten several dogs in that section as well as one or two in Smethport. All the animals which are said to have been bitten are being closely watched and will probably be killed if their actions show symptoms of the disease. A number of sheep are also said to have been bitten by alleged mad dogs in this vicinity. If all reports in regard to this matter are true the situation is indeed alarming, but the general belief is that many of the stories are untrue. Several owners of valuable dogs in Smethport have sent their dogs to places of safety till the scare blows over.

James Buck Dies Suddenly.

James Buck, a well known citizen of Port Allegany, died very suddenly at his home in that place on Friday last. He had not been feeling well for a few days, but his condition was not considered at all serious, and the report of his death was a sad surprise to the community. He had been assistant cashier at the Port Allegany National bank for several years and was a highly respected resident. Mr. Buck was aged about fifty-five years and leaves a wife and four children to mourn his sudden demise.

HAIR OF THE SLOTH.

It Is Green in Color and For a Peculiar Reason.

It is a very curious fact that certain plants grow and thrive on the hair of sloths. Apart from its extremely coarse and brittle nature, the most striking peculiarity of the outer hair of the sloth is its more or less decidedly green tinge. Now, green is a very rare color among mammals, and there ought, therefore, to be some special reason for its development in the sloth, and, as a matter of fact, the means by which this coloration is produced is one of the most marvelous phenomena in the whole animal kingdom, so marvelous, indeed, that it is at first almost impossible to believe that it is true.

The object of this peculiar type of coloration is, of course, to assimilate the animal to its leafy surroundings and thus to render it as inconspicuous as possible, and when hanging in its usual position from the underside of a bough its long, coarse, and green tinged hair is stated to render the sloth almost indistinguishable from the bunches of gray green lichens among which it dwells. In the outer sheath of the hairs of the sloth there are a number of transverse cracks, and in these cracks grows a peculiar type of [illegible], a one called algæ.

Borough primaries Saturday night, Jan. 25.

See to it that good men are selected to fill the borough offices.

Judging from the number of announcements there will be lively times at the primaries.

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND, who has been seriously ill for some time, has sufficiently recovered to be able to take a Southern hunting trip.

THE Governor of Kentucky says that State is in a peaceful condition. We assume, therefore, that every Kentuckian has his bottle filled and knows where the next one is coming from.—Chicago Record-Herald.

JOHN OBMEROD and W. I. Lewis, two popular attorneys of Coudersport, have announced their candidacy for President Judge of Potter country. Both are good men and no matter which is elected, Potter county will be ably represented on the bench.

THE decision of the President to make a personal examination of the case of Admiral Schley, in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the army and navy, is regarded as an evidence of Mr. Roosevelt's spirit of justice. After an interview with the admiral, which lasted over an hour, the President came to this conclusion, and at Tuesday's cabinet meeting he announced his intention. The admiral's attorneys are now preparing a statement for submission to the President.—Bradford Star.

AT the head of these columns will be found the announcement of the candidacy of John R. Shoemaker of this borough for county commissioner, subject to the decision of the Republican primaries. During his long residence in this county Mr. Shoemaker has filled many positions of trust, both public and private, and in no single instance was he ever found wanting. A long service as commissioners' clerk has thoroughly familiarized him with the duties of the position, and probably no man in the county is more eminently qualified to intelligently discharge the duties of the office of commissioner than is Mr. Shoemaker. That he will receive a deservedly large vote throughout the county is beyond question.

ON Saturday of next week the Republican primaries for nomination of borough officers will be held. As the well being of the town depends a great deal on the ability of its officers none but good men should be elected. Let every Republican make it a point to attend the primaries and select a ticket that will be elected by a large majority.

A UNIQUE silver service costing $10,000, to be presented to Admiral Schley by friends in Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland, has been completed by Baltimore silversmiths. The work on it was begun in June, 1900. The service weighs about 2,000 ounces and is made from coins taken from the wreck of the Spanish cruiser, Cristobol Colon, sunk by Admiral Schley's flagship in the battle of Santiago. Ex Postmaster General James A. Gary has been foremost in the movement for this magnificent gift to the Admiral. The presentation will soon be made.

JOHN B. EASTMAN announces his candidacy for the office of Register of Wills and Clerk of the Orphans' Court, subject to the decision of the Republican primaries. Mr. Eastman is an able man and, having had charge of this branch of business under Prothonotary Mitchell for a number of years, he is doubly capable of performing the duties now that the office is divided. Mr. Eastman is a pleasant and obliging gentleman who has made many friends while connected with this office and we predict that he will make a popular candidate both at the primaries and the polls.

IN this issue H. M. Choate announces that he is a candidate for the office of Recorder of this county, subject to the usages of the Republican primaries. For the past sixteen or seventeen years Mr. Choate has had the handling of this business under the prothonotaries. He thoroughly understands the work and is always pleasant and obliging to all patrons of the office. He is a veteran of the Civil war and has held many offices of honor in the local and county G. A. R. associations. He is a man of good education and his thorough knowledge of the office makes him an exceedingly formidable candidate. His Republicanism has never been questioned and all members of the party can safely give him hearty support.

A Prominent Chicago Woman Speaks.

Prof. Rosa Tyler of Chicago, Vice President Illinois Woman's Alliance, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I suffered with a severe cold this winter which threatened to run into pneumonia. I tried different remedies, but I seemed to grow worse and the medicine upset my stomach. A friend advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I found it was pleasant to take and it relieved me at once. I am now entirely recovered, saved a doctor's bill, time and suffering, and I will never be without this splendid medicine again." For sale by H. C. Wells, druggist.

It is unequaled especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough, and is the best medicine made for the diseases. There is not the least danger in giving it to children for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to babies as to adults. For sale by H. C. Wells, druggist.

Jewels are only flowers, more that is the color of a woman's preference. Jewels form a magnet of magnetic power to the average woman. Even the greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. Borough Ordinance No.

Entitled an Ordinance relative to the running at large of dogs and bitches, and requiring the owners of such animals to muzzle them, and providing for seizure, detention and killing thereof in certain cases; providing penalties for allowing such animals to go at large without muzzles, providing for pound and compensation of poundmaster, providing for redemption of animals by owners thereof in certain cases, and prescribing duties of officers, etc.

WHEREAS, numerous citizens have expressed fear of alleged mad dogs said to be running at large and not muzzled within the limits of the Borough of Smethport:

Be it ordained by the town council of the Borough of Smethport, County of McKean and State of Pennsylvania, and it is hereby ordained by the authority of the same:

SECTION 1. All owners of dogs or bitches permitted to run at large within the limits of said Borough of Smethport shall, for the period of 30 days from the date hereinafter designated as the time this ordinance shall take effect, and at and during such other times or periods as the Chief Burgess of said Borough may hereafter designate by publication and posting of not less than six notices in the most public places in said Borough, provide and securely fasten a muzzle on such dog or bitch in such manner that such dog or bitch shall be unable to bite.

SECTION 2. Any person who, after the date this ordinance takes effect, and within the time or times that may be designated by the proper authorities for dogs and bitches to be kept muzzled in accordance with the provisions of this ordinance, permits his dog or bitch to run at large within the limits of said Borough without being properly muzzled, shall be fined in the sum of five dollars ($5.00), to be collected for the use of said Borough as debts of like amount are now by law collectible.

SECTION 3. It shall be the duty of the Constable, or any other person appointed for that purpose by the Chief Burgess, to seize and impound any dog or bitch running at large within said Borough during the said 30 days from the time this ordinance takes effect, and such other times as the Chief Burgess may hereafter designate, as hereinbefore provided, unless such dog or bitch be securely muzzled as aforesaid.

SECTION 4. That any person whatsoever may make complaint of persons allowing any dog or bitch to run at large without the same being properly muzzled, and contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, to the said Chief Burgess, and it shall thereupon become his duty to entertain and immediately investigate the same, or cause the same to be done, and if said complaint be found to be correct, to apprehend or impound such dog or bitch, or cause the same to be done, as provided in this ordinance.

SECTION 5. The Chief Burgess of said Borough is hereby authorized, empowered and directed to provide and establish forthwith a pound, such as he may deem best, whereto he shall cause to be impounded all dogs and bitches that may at any time, as provided by this ordinance, be found at large, or loose, or wandering abroad within the said Borough, unmuzzled and contrary to the provisions of this ordinance; and also to employ a poundmaster to take charge of said pound, apprehend, take up, capture, collect and impound all of said animals, liable under this ordinance to be impounded, and to enforce the provisions of this ordinance. The compensation of the poundmaster shall be one dollar for each dog or bitch so impounded, which compensation shall be paid by the person reclaiming said animal, and in case they are not reclaimed, he shall be compensated as hereinafter provided.

SECTION 6. No animal impounded as aforesaid shall be released and discharged therefrom except by the owner making demand therefor of the Chief Burgess or poundmaster within 48 hours after such animal was impounded therein, proving ownership of such animal, and paying to said poundmaster the sum of twenty-five cents for each and every day or fraction thereof during which said animal was impounded therein, in addition to the sum provided in the preceding section, and procuring for and putting on said animal a suitable muzzle.

SECTION 7. The poundmaster shall cause all of said animals remaining in said pound 48 hours after being impounded therein without being claimed or released by the owner or owners, as hereinbefore provided, to be put to death in such manner and buried so as not to create a nuisance.

The poundmaster shall receive the sum of one dollar for the first and fifty cents for each additional animal so killed and buried in any one day, which sum shall be paid by the Borough.

SECTION 8. Any person who shall break open any dog pound, or who shall in any manner rescue or abstract any dog or bitch therein from or wholly interfere with or hinder the capture or removal of any such muzzled animal to said pound, shall be fined in a sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00), to be collected for the use of said Borough as debts of like amount are now by law collectible.

SECTION 9. This ordinance shall take effect on January 21st, A. D. 1902.

Attest: JAS. A. McKEAN
President.

LESLIE T. CORNELIUS,
Secretary.

Approved this 9th day of January, A. D. 1902.

CIRCUS JACK

By Stanley Edwards Johnson

Copyright, 1902, by S. E. Johnson

ONE morning long before the great shows took to the rails McAlpine's Combined Colossal Hippodrome and Consummation of Wonders was expected to pass through Tressett. The youngest generation of this village (that is to say, that part of it that could move on wheels) had been anticipating this event for fully three weeks. The multifarious of the barns and sheds in the vicinity had proclaimed the alluring merits of spangled, horsehair riders, roaring lions, snarling tigers, daring contortionists and trapeze performers, clowns, monkeys and women who shoot on horseback on the backs of running horses and pierce unerring bull's eyes with rifle balls.

All the local boys were excited by the prospect, but Matilda Vinton, Tressett's most beautiful girl, was in a state bordering on frenzy.

Tilda was my left eye to him. The great events had not begun to pass, and the streets of Tressett's north ward were wending their way toward the upper valley by Cold Stream curve to meet the procession.

They followed far behind, their arms encircling each other, absorbed in a discussion of Tilda's great fortune.

"I think you lost your pa, Tilda," Jacky declared, with solemn earnestness.

"Oh, I'm so glad, Jacky, that you approve, for I shouldn't want to do anything upon your wishes, but, I'm just goin' for, you know."

"Got any money?"

"Naw. I haven't, but I'll get it somehow."

"Take this." And Jacky shyly held out his hand, palm down.

"Why, Jacky Vinton!" exclaimed the delighted Tilda. "If you ain't the best fellow that ever was, that's all! Now I'm happy."

"Ain't you glad I have the money?"

"No, Jacky, dear, for what I hope to do I must do myself, and I'm going to be very brave and independent, and I'm not going to be afraid of anything."

"Not even of me?" Jacky asked, with a sly look.

"Not even of you, Jacky, for I'm sure you're my friend, and I'm going to be very good to you, and I'm going to be very kind to you, and I'm going to be very good to you, and I'm going to be very kind to you, and I'm going to be very good to you, and I'm going to be very kind to you

Between wet and dry nurses Bertholdi, the performing lion of the Cosmopolitan circus, let out a sound that was half groan and half roar.

"What's the matter, Bertholdi, the elephant man, gesturing to him for silence.

"Don't know, I'm sure," said the woman, scarcely taking time from a look at Brindle who stood beside Bertholdi. "He isn't in good humor today."

"Should say he wasn't," replied Bertholdi. "Ill tempered, bad mannered beast! Wouldn't wonder if he was going bad."

"Nonsense! My lions don't go bad. Besides, he's only a two year old. Look at old Archon. He's ten if he's a day, and you don't see him going bad, do you?"

"There's something wrong with Brindle, anyway," insisted the man.

"Of course there is. He's had a rough morning of it. He was clumsy and stepped on Archon's toes at rehearsal, and Archon boxed his ears. The hyena in the next cage laughed and that hurt Brindle's feelings. You know how sensitive he is. He sulked so that I had to beat him to make him perform at all. He's awfully cut up about it, for you know I really believe he is fond of me."

"Wish you'd believe that about somebody else, Sue," said the man wistfully, looking down at to the clear, brown eyes that were fixed on the lion.

"Perhaps I don't want to," said the girl saucily. "Besides, Bertholdi, you swore at me. You can bear a sworling now," she added, brightening as she helped the last [illegible]

MAJOR BORUM AND THE THIEF

By Martha McCulloch Williams

Copyright, 1901,
By Martha McCulloch Williams.

Old man Buckley, one of Marshalltown's three inveterate tipplers, was trying to sober up against his daughter's wedding. When he had his complement of drinks, he was to outward seeming as sober as a judge. Lack of them set him reeling upon his horse and guiding the sagacious beast to letter S's all over the road.

"Look!" Major Borum said to Molly, his niece and adopted heiress. "That's what I'm trying to save you from—the thing which biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

"You needn't try to make out poor Jink is a snake," Molly said spiritedly. "I'm sure he wouldn't crawl, not even to get me."

"Oh, no! You think it was his independence that kept him from signing the pledge when I demanded it of him," the major said, with a fine, lofty scorn. Again Molly tossed her head.

"I would have said no to him if he had signed it," she said. "Why, Jink was never drunk but once in his life, and that was in the way of business. If he had not drunk to match that Long Hollow crowd, his pa would have lost all their trade, and it's worth a thousand dollars clear profit every year."

The major groaned. He was a round, pursy man, rosy-faced, with little eyes twinkling through smothering fat. He had come back to his native town the year before breathing out a vague aroma of riches and ready to give advice offhand to anything from divine Providence to the town council. Marshalltown folk said he was cram full of crank notions, which he had had no chance to spend properly in governing a wife or bringing up children of his own.

He struck Marshalltown a teetotaler of the first water, the second water and also the third. Water was indeed his creed and rallying cry for the time being. His mind and heart were set upon organizing a temperance knighthood after ideas peculiarly his own.

Marshalltown would have none of the knighthood. It was so temperate, letting the single saloon languish except at Christmas time and the Fourth of July, that it resented organized temperance much as it might have resented the organization of an antistealing brotherhood. To its mind a man ought to drink when he felt like it and had good liquor handy, but should never be tempted into swallowing stuff he did not really care for by giving it the zest of forbidden fruit. So it heartily applauded Jink Travis' refusal to become the first fruits of the major's enthusiasm. It was a fine thing, everybody admitted, seeing how matters stood. Jink as good as engaged to Molly and Molly's heirship contingent on her marrying to suit the major.

Jink and Molly had been lovers throughout. It was all settled that they should marry when Jink was taken into the firm. But that's afar off, as down upon Dean three months before the sign, "Travis & Son, Groceries, Hardware, Provisions, Liquors, Wholesale and Retail," went up upon the big block at the head of the main street. Molly had eight younger brothers and sisters. Her father could not hope to do more than feed and clothe them. So the major and his fortune had to be taken into account, especially when he asked to have Molly the same as his own child.

That was where the pinch came. For herself and Jink, Molly could have bidden the fortune go hang. But the children! She could not shut out her mother's anxious eyes, her father's patient, troubled face. As long as she did not rebel openly she was free to help with both hands. So she contented herself with vowing she would die an old maid unless she might marry Jink and smiling her sweetest at Jink himself whenever she got the chance.

Jink could not well be so patient. He wanted a wife, a home of his own and Molly for that wife. He was ready to do anything reasonable to get her. He might have gone in for that knighthood foolishness if he had not known she would be the first to despise him for it. He might even have done it and tried to square himself later with his sweetheart if he had been sure the major was honest in his crankery. Somehow the major's enthusiasm rang false to him. Under and behind the flow of words he saw something in the unctuous lips, the beady, twinkling eyes, which made him suspect that the major, like other self deluded mortals, was more anxious to pose as a great moral force than to rule strictly his own appetites.

Indeed, as Dan Brown put it, "the cut of the major's jib gave him away for a blamed old hypocrite." Dan Brown was Jink's chum, the head man at the new electric light plant, which Travis & Son had done so much to get installed. Of course, their own store was the very first to be wired and lighted. All the first week afterward Jink himself did nothing much but march around with swarming rural customers and flash lights into every dark hole and corner from the third story to the cellar. In the flashing he incidentally made them sure there was no danger of getting a stroke of lightning. Otherwise trade might have suffered.

"I say this yere projick, it jest knocks the socks off'n anything ever I saw," Squire Crane said as Jink made the cellar dark or light by the mere turning of a button. Afterward he explained that the cellar would be always light. Then everybody smiled. That meant something to Travis' customers. Ever since the store opened there had been a barrel of the best whisky conveniently remote from general view, but free to whoever chose to go and take a drink. It was, of course, a point of honor not to drink unless you were a pretty good customer. Major Borum was a pretty good customer, in spite of social complications, but nobody ever suspected him of even knowing where the barrel stood.

It lay hung up, with the thief hanging upon a handy nail in the wall a foot away. The thief, understand, was only an innocent tin tube, open at both ends and slender enough to slip easily through the bunghole. In use it was thrust down into the liquor, open end foremost. Then a finger held close over the upper end made it fetch out enough liquor for a drink, stiff or mild according to the depth of the plunge. By way of keeping the thief in place a little ring had been soldered on to the upper end, a long wire twisted in the ring and likewise made fast to the nail in the wall. Careless drinkers might otherwise have dropped the invaluable tube or absentminded ones, after the third drink, have gone off with it in the pocket.

Throughout the summer Major Borum came into the store only when he had business, but as the days grew short and nipping he fell into a way of sitting into the group around the stove, listening when he had to—that was rather seldom—and talking when he could—that was most of the time.

Toward Christmas the major haunted the store more than ever, especially late in the day when there was always plenty of trade. He had got so familiar he went everywhere, up stairs or down, without exciting comment. Some few said he was simmering down. They reckoned it would be all right betwixt Jink and Molly by—well, say, next spring; but Jink and Molly knew better. Indeed they had almost lost hope when Dan Brown came to their help.

The lights had been working badly, so Dan chased down into the cellar about dusk one night to look after the switchboard. In a minute he came up, his eyes staring like saucers, beckoned Jink to him and plunged again below. Nobody saw any more of them that night. They worked in the cellar until near 12 o'clock and went home chuckling aloud.

All next day Jink moved like a man in a dream, waiting upon customers with his head half turned over his shoulder. It was a busy day, Saturday, and the world and his wife were in town. About noon, when the crush was greatest, everybody was startled by a succession of yells, unearthly, agonizing, coming up, it seemed, from right under their feet. Three parts of the hearers dashed into the street, two women fainted, and old lady Buckley snatched up her basket of eggs, crying out that she "allus knew somep'n' was bound ter happen ter that store ever sence they took an' made candles outen the Lord A'mighty's own thunder." But half a dozen rushed below, where the screams still kept up, interpolated now with roars of strenuous laughter.

There was more laughing when they saw the whole thing—Major Borum, theirs in hand, howling, hopping from one foot to the other, unable to let go and between howls swearing like a pirate at Dan Brown, who stood with his hand upon an innocent looking key newly set in the switchboard.

Dan was saying between gasps:

"Never—got to—agree, major. Let Jink—have Molly—or leave you stay all day. You can't let go that chain. It's got a full force voltage. We fixed it, Jink and I, as soon as ever I came in. You taking a drink on the sly?"

"No, no, Dan. I couldn't let you persecute Molly's uncle," Jink said, nodding for the key. "I'm awfully obliged to you, though, for watching here," he went on. "You know," to those behind him, "we could not afford to turn on the current—until we were sure of our man."

"I sorter reckon you've made sure of your gal," old man Buckley said as the crestfallen major vanished up the stair.

Sure enough, it turned out that Jink had.

"The Light That Failed."

A wealthy Riverina squatter, now departed, as he used to phrase it, "to the great Muster," was noted almost as much for his Attic wit as for his parsimony. He also stuttered very badly and helped along his halting utterance with a frequent ejaculation of "D'ye see? D'ye see?" His niggardly traits gained him widespread local unpopularity and the bitter enmity of sundowners, who were always rigorously refused rations at his stations.

Smarting under this unusual inhospitality, some disappointed swaggies on occasion set fire to one of the squatter's wool sheds and then wrote upon a gate: "We've well burnt down your wool shed. D'ye see? D'ye see?"

Of course, it caught the big man's eye when next he passed through. For a moment he contemplated the announcement and then with a sardonic grin took the stump of a blue pencil from his pocket and scribbled underneath: "It was well insured. D'ye see? D'ye see?"—Household Words.

Life History In Hair.

A single hair is a sort of history of the physical condition of an individual during the time it has been growing. If one could read closely enough. Take a hair from the beard or from the head and scrutinize it, and you will see that it shows some attenuated places, indicating that at some period of its growth the blood supply was deficient from overwork, anxiety or underfeeding.

Arab Music.

Arab music has been described as the singing of a prima donna who has ruptured her voice in trying to sing a duet with herself. Each note starts from somewhere between a sharp and a flat, but does not stop even there and splits up into four or more portions, of which no person can be expected to catch more than one at a time.

Intentional.

The caller had a grievance.

"That communication I sent you yesterday," he said, "was signed 'More Anon' as plainly as the words could be written. You printed it in your paper this morning 'Omega.'"

"I know it," replied the editor. "We didn't intend there should be any more anon."—Chicago Tribune.

LARABEE.

Excitement ran high in the vicinity of the depot Friday, when a man from Farmers Valley by the name of Garey tried to show the people just how close ahead of the flyer he could cross the track and not get caught. He was perfectly sobered when he finally brought up on the depot platform and saw the blanched faces of the spectators. Few people have taken so close a chance and lived to realize it.
